Fógraí Tairisceana:
Notices of Motions:

178. "That Dáil Éireann:

notes that:

— there were 643,131 people, 13.5 per cent of the population, who indicated that they had a disability in Census 2016, which represented an increase of 47,796 people between 2011 and 2016;

— up to one in ten persons below 45 years of age has a disability, rising to 20 per cent by age 60, and rates increase sharply above age 70;

— educational attainment amongst disabled persons is much lower than that of the general population at all levels;

— the unemployment rate amongst persons with a disability was 26.3 per cent, more than double the then 12.9 per cent rate for the population as a whole;

— the potential loss of the medical card is an immensely significant barrier preventing people with disabilities and chronic illness entering employment;

— the Central Statistics Office's (CSO) Survey on Income and Living Conditions published in February, 2017, showed that while overall general poverty rates in Ireland are showing some improvements, they are getting worse for people who live with a disability, and it found that 53 per cent of people who are not in work due to a disability or illness are experiencing enforced deprivation;

— living with a disability in Ireland today can bring extra costs of between €207 and €276 per week;

— almost 50 per cent of people living with a physical disability experience difficulty going outside the home alone due to inadequate transport provision;

— despite provision under the Disability Act 2005 for an assessment of need, thousands of children are being denied their developmental potential for years while stuck on waiting lists for therapy supports;

— today, one in 20 people in Ireland is a family carer, collectively providing some €10 billon in unpaid care each year;

— respite care involves giving families and carers much needed assistance in caring for their loved one for a short period – that current provision is far short of what is needed, and without adequate respite, family carers are themselves left more vulnerable to ill-health;

— the in loco parentis clause in homecare nursing contracts for sick children is causing unnecessary stress, worry and constraint on the parents of sick children;

— the Health Information and Quality Authority (HIQA) are helping to ensure that best standards apply in all special care homes, although they are still under-resourced; and — Ireland has at last ratified the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD), having signed it over a decade ago in 2007; and calls on the Government to:

— ensure that there is a corresponding entitlement to a service along with an assessment of need enshrined in legislation;

— prioritise the scheduling and passage into law of the Disability (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill 2016;

— establish, without any unnecessary delay, the Decision Support Service promised in the Assisted-Decision Making (Capacity) Act 2015;

— recognise the importance of the two implementation mechanisms provided in the UNCRPD through the adoption of the Optional Protocol to the CRPD; — provide significant additional investment to combat the long waiting lists for therapy supports such as occupational therapy, physiotherapy, speech and language therapy and psychology;

— recognise the additional expense of having a disability and increase income supports accordingly;

— increase personal assistance hours by 500,000 to address the unmet need and enable people to be active participants within their family household, their communities, employment and society;

— increase funding for housing adaptation grants by 50 per cent from current level;

— increase respite care services by 20 per cent;

— fund appropriate employment services to enable and empower people with a disability to gain or retain employment;

— ensure that everybody with serious medical needs has a secure medical card;

— abolish immediately the in loco parentis clause in homecare nursing contracts for sick children;

— significantly increase investment in transport accessibility and work towards making all public transport wheelchair-accessible;

— introduce a scheme to replace the mobility allowance and motorised transport grant;

— allocate the necessary funding to progress de-congregation; — increase resourcing for HIQA to facilitate the carrying out of the most effective inspection regime possible, thereby ensuring best standards will apply in all settings; and — designate a lead co-ordinating department to ensure joined-up thinking and joined-up action across all Government departments in the interest of people with disabilities."

179. "That Dáil Éireann:

recognises that:

— the Human Papilloma Virus (HPV) vaccine protects young girls from developing cervical cancer when they grow up;

— vaccinating pre-teen boys also protects them against HPV-related cancers later in life;

— the Health Service Executive (HSE) estimates that 300 Irish women get cervical cancer every year, with up to 90 deaths; and

— according to official figures, over 220,000 Irish girls have safely received the HPV vaccine to date;

notes that:

— more than 200 million doses of the HPV vaccine have been administered worldwide, with no serious side effects scientifically attributed to the vaccine; and — Australia, which was one of the first countries to introduce the HPV vaccine, has seen a 50 per cent drop in rates of pre-cancer of the cervix over the past decade; unanimously supports the campaign to encourage parents to avail of the HPV vaccine for their children in their first year of secondary school; and calls on the Government to further extend the HPV vaccination programme to include boys in their first year of secondary school." — Brendan Howlin, Joan Burton, Alan Kelly, Jan O'Sullivan, Willie Penrose, Brendan Ryan, Sean Sherlock.

180. "That Dáil Éireann:

notes that:

— members of An Garda Síochána play a hugely important role in Irish society and have generally served this country well;

— public trust is a crucial element of effective policing; and — citizens of Ireland want a police service that they can continue to be proud of and one that is capable of preventing and reprimanding those who commit crime so that they can appear in court and be prosecuted with properly gathered evidence;

agrees that:

— ongoing professional development is paramount to ensuring that members of An Garda Síochána are trained for the challenges for 21st century policing;

— unfortunately recent scandals exposed in An Garda Síochána have damaged public confidence in the force; and — independent commissions on police forces have successfully worked in Northern Ireland (Independent Commission on Policing for Northern Ireland), in the UK and in the USA; and calls for the establishment of an Independent Commission of An Garda Síochána:

— that would examine how to:

  — improve basic training;

  — enhance career progression of the force; and — introduce a proper professional development structure that would allow for far better supervisory mechanisms to be put in place; and — which should result in a much improved, accountable management structure that would greatly improve Garda services to citizens, result in boosting morale and building up trust and confidence." — *Jim O'Callaghan, Bobby Aylward, John Brassil, Declan Breathnach, James Browne, Mary Butler, Thomas Byrne, Jackie Cahill, Dara Calleary, Pat Casey, Shane Cassells, Jack Chambers, Lisa M. 181. "That Dáil Éireann:

recognises that:

— Allied Irish Banks (AIB) is a 99.9 per cent State-owned bank which received significant sums of public funds by way of a bail-out;

— the Government has a responsibility to Irish citizens regarding the financial management of AIB as a result of the bail-out;

— unless International Accounting Standard (IAS) 39 is corrected, any such floatation could potentially be fraudulent;

— in the context of Brexit and other pressures facing our economy, it is vital to ensure we maximise the return on our bail-out investment in AIB; and — a decision of such magnitude should be taken by democratic means and is not a matter for Government to arbitrarily decide; and calls on the Government:

— to produce a cost-benefit analysis regarding any proposed share sale of AIB, clearly laying out the benefits or otherwise of a share sale now, at a future point, or not at all;

— to commit to providing the results of that cost-benefit analysis to every member of Dáil Éireann for consideration; — to undertake a legal assessment of the implications of IAS 39; and — not to proceed with any share sale unless it is established, by way of a Dáil vote, that such a sale has majority Dáil Éireann support." — Catherine Murphy, Róisín Shortall.

182. "That Dáil Éireann:

notes that:

— 937,000 breath tests were wrongly recorded on the official Garda digital record system, Police Using Leading Systems Effectively (PULSE), and that the existence of a problem in this regard was communicated to Garda Commissioner Nóirín O'Sullivan in 2014;

— 14,700 people were subject to wrongful convictions due to Garda errors;

— Commissioner O'Sullivan failed to adequately explain the cause of these errors;

— high-ranking members of An Garda Síochána have recently been accused of engaging in a systematic campaign to smear the character and reputation of Sergeant Maurice McCabe and other Garda whistleblowers; and — there has been a resulting erosion of public confidence and trust in An Garda Síochána, including a lack of public confidence in Commissioner O'Sullivan and senior Garda management to investigate possible Garda malpractice and/or corruption involving, in particular, the carrying out of breath tests, processing offences through the courts, and handling complaints and protected disclosures from members of An Garda Síochána; acknowledges that:

— An Garda Síochána should be held accountable, in terms of their adherence to professional and ethical standards; and — section 11 of the Garda Síochána Act 2005 states that:

  — a person who holds the office of Garda Commissioner may be removed from office by the Government but only for stated reasons, including:

    — the person has failed to perform the functions of the office with due diligence and effectiveness; and — the person's removal from office would, in the Government's opinion, be in the best interests of An Garda Síochána; and — on notifying under section 12(1) a person who holds the office of Garda Commissioner that the Government intends to consider removing him or her from office, the Government may immediately suspend the person from duty;

further notes that Commissioner O'Sullivan has stated that she plans to continue in her position, even if there is a Dáil vote of no confidence in her; and calls on the Government to:

— use the powers available to them under the Garda Síochána Act 2005 to immediately suspend and then remove from office the current Garda Commissioner, Nóirín O'Sullivan;

— independently investigate the involvement of members of senior Garda management in alleged malpractice and/or corruption;

— urgently review the situations in which people may be convicted for certain crimes based on the word of a Garda Superintendent; and — urgently review how An Garda Síochána can be made democratically accountable to the communities they serve, including, the election of democratically accountable bodies, empowered to decide on how policing is implemented, how policing resources are spent and to hold An Garda Síochána accountable for their actions." — Richard Boyd Barrett, Bríd Smith, Gino Kenny, Ruth Coppinger, Mick Barry, Paul Murphy.

183. "That Dáil Éireann:

— is appalled by the deteriorating situation in Syria;

— condemns without reservation the horrendous violence and destruction which has led to a significant loss of life;

— in particular, condemns the recent suspected chemical attacks in Idlib, Syria, which reportedly killed dozens of people, including children; — condemns the illegal, unilateral airstrikes by the United States of America (USA), which used 59 Tomahawk cruise missiles to target the Shayrat airbase on Friday, 7th April, 2017, which reportedly killed nine civilians, including four children in areas near the airbase;

— deplores the use of weapons with indiscriminate effects, such as incendiary weapons, and deplores all forms of bombing; — condemns the deliberate attacks on essential services such as hospitals and the attacks that have killed or injured people providing humanitarian assistance;

— believes that the bombing campaign carried out by the Syrian Government, Russian Military, USA Military, Australian Military, Canadian Military, Danish Military, French Military, Jordanian Military, Dutch Military, British Military, Saudi Arabian Military, Bahraini Military, Turkish Military, United Arab Emirates Military and the Syrian rebel forces are conducted with complete disregard for the most fundamental principles of international human rights law; and — recognises that the murder of innocent civilians by the various factions may amount to war crimes and should be punished accordingly;

calls for:

— all sides in the conflict to abide by international human rights law and put an end to all bombing of Syria;

— the Irish Government to formally make known to all governments that have engaged in the bombing of Syria, the Irish people's revulsion of their actions in Syria;

— increased humanitarian aid to be deployed to refugee camps to assist those fleeing Syria, Afghanistan and Iraq, and specific efforts to be made by the Irish Government to accommodate families and children in particular from this war-torn region; and — renewed efforts to be made to broker peace in the country by taking a neutral position and by condemning all acts of violence, including all forms of bombings by all parties to the conflict; and concludes that:

— the Syrian population is highly vulnerable and 13.5 million people are in need of humanitarian assistance, 6.6 million are internally displaced, 4.6 million people are in hard-to-reach areas, including over 480,000 besieged, whilst millions of others have fled Syria seeking refuge in neighbouring countries and beyond; and — Ireland, along with the international community, must stand in unity with the people of Syria and make a concerted effort to prevent further potential war crimes being committed and to work collectively to bring a lasting peace to the region." — Mick Wallace, Clare Daly, Maureen O'Sullivan, Thomas Pringle, Catherine Connolly, Joan Collins.

184. "That Dáil Éireann:

— is appalled by the reported use of chemical weapons in Khan Sheikhun, Syria on 4th April, 2017, which killed dozens of people, including children; — reiterates that United Nations Security Council (UNSC) Resolutions 2118 (2013) and 2209 (2015), which condemned in the strongest terms the use of any toxic chemical as a weapon in Syria, affirmed that the use of chemical weapons constituted a serious violation of international law and stressed that those responsible for the use of such weapons must be held accountable;

— recognises that the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) and the United Nations Joint Investigative Mechanism (JIM), was mandated by the UNSC to identify to the greatest extent feasible individuals, entities, groups or governments who were perpetrators, organisers, sponsors or otherwise involved in the use of chemicals as weapons, including chlorine or any other toxic chemical, in Syria;

— notes the allegations of the use of Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC) listed chemical weapons and/or toxic chemicals as weapons in Syria received by the JIM from member states between December 2015 and August 2016 include sarin (13), sulphur mustard (12), VX (4), chlorine (41) and other toxic chemicals or agents (61);

— recalls the findings of the JIM in its August 2016 report into eight cases of suspected chlorine attacks and one sulphur mustard attack, which occurred between April 2014 and September 2015, which accuses both the Syrian army and other actors, including ISIS/Da'esh, of carrying out these attacks;

— condemns these chemical weapons attacks without reservation;

— welcomes that the OPCW is investigating the incident in Khan Sheikun under the on-going mandate of the OPCW Fact-Finding Mission;

— notes that the OPCW has stated that it cannot and will not release information about an on-going investigation; that this policy exists to preserve the integrity of the investigatory process and its results, as well as to ensure the safety and security of the OPCW experts and personnel involved;

— states its disgust at the complete lack of adherence to the norms of international law by the warring parties in Syria;

— condemns all direct and indirect foreign involvement in the conflict; and — welcomes that the Irish Government has continued to donate to humanitarian efforts and relief programmes in Syria, and in refugee camps in neighbouring countries, and its pledge, on 5th April, 2017, of a further €25 million to help the Syrian humanitarian effort in 2017;

calls for:

— the UNSC to immediately adopt criteria to curtail members from using a veto when there are serious concerns that war crimes and crimes against humanity may have been committed, and to work towards further reform of the UNSC, including the abolishment of permanent positions and the ability of any country to have a veto;

— the UNSC to refer the situation in Syria to the International Criminal Court and to ensure that anyone who is suspected of committing war crimes is prosecuted;

— the Irish Government to formally make known to the Syrian government, and the governments of all countries directly or indirectly involved in the war, of the Irish people's disgust at suspected war crimes in the conflict, and to condemn these actions and the continued loss of life in Syria without reservation;

— the Syrian government to unconditionally abide by its obligations as a State Party to the CWC and as a member state of the OPCW;

— the Irish Government to assist in renewed efforts to establish a ceasefire in the conflict and efforts to establish a peace process; and — the Irish Government to fulfil all its humanitarian and aid commitments to Syria and Syrian refugees, including the resettlement and relocation of Syrian refugees in Ireland; and concludes that the ongoing conflict in Syria has created one of the worst humanitarian crises in modern times and Ireland, as a priority, must assist efforts to end the conflict, to prosecute those suspected of committing war crimes, and to tackle the huge humanitarian crisis that this brutal conflict has caused." — *Seán Crowe, Pat Buckley, Gerry Adams, John Brady, David Cullinane, Pearse Doherty, Dessie Ellis, Martin J. 185. "That Dáil Éireann:

— is appalled by the recent suspected chemical attack in Idlib, Syria which killed dozens of people, including children;

— notes that the Organisation for Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) and the United Nations Joint Investigative Mechanism (JIM), which is mandated by the United Nations Security Council (UNSC), found sufficient evidence that the Syrian government has deployed chemical weapons on previous occasions;

— further notes that Ireland has been to the fore in promoting a code of conduct regarding UNSC action in relation to genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, and has also supported initiatives aimed at restraining the use of the veto in situations of mass atrocity;

— condemns without reservation the use of chemical weapons which are a violation of international law;

— believes that the actions of the Syrian government are an affront to humanity and are conducted with flagrant disregard for international human rights law; and — further condemns the actions taken by the Russian military in Syria, which supports President Basahar Al Assad's regime, and also its continued use of its veto at the UNSC to block sanctions being imposed on Syria;

calls for:

— the OPCW to carry out a full investigation to formally determine the use of chemical weapons in Idlib, Syria;

— the UNSC to immediately adopt criteria to curtail members from using the veto where there are serious concerns that war crimes and crimes against humanity may have been committed;

— the UNSC to refer the situation in Syria to the International Criminal Court;

— accountability for war crimes, such as the use of chemical weapons;

— those suspected of committing such heinous crimes to be investigated fully and to face the full rigours of the law if found guilty;

— the Irish Government to formally make known to the Syrian government our horror at their actions and condemn them without reservation;

— continued support for the people of Syria and to honour the commitment as outlined in the Programme for Partnership Government to 'continue to play an active role at the European Union Foreign Affairs Council, the OSCE and through the UN, in seeking diplomatic resolutions to crises and conflict, with particular reference to Syria'; and — renewed efforts by the international community to broker lasting peace in Syria; and

concludes that:

— the ongoing conflict in Syria has created one of the world's worst humanitarian crises; the people of Syria have been subjected to the most heinous and appalling atrocities, hundreds of thousands have lost their lives, whilst millions have been displaced; the use of chemical weapons demonstrates that the Syrian government operates without any regard for human life; and — it is therefore incumbent upon Ireland to speak out against such abhorrent acts of violence and to call upon the international bodies, including the United Nations and the European Union, to use every mechanism at its disposal, or where necessary adopt new mechanisms, to ensure that those suspected of committing such crimes are fully investigated and where found guilty are treated accordingly under law." — *Darragh O'Brien, Micheál Martin and all other members of the Fianna Fáil parliamentary party, an Taoiseach and all other members of the Fine Gael parliamentary party, Katherine Zappone, Aire Leanaí agus Gnóthaí Óige, Brendan Howlin and all other members of the Labour parliamentary party, Róisín Shortall, Catherine Murphy, Michael J. 186. "That Dáil Éireann:

calls on the Government to seek the following amendment of paragraph 11 of the European Council (Article 50) (29th April, 2017) draft guidelines following the United Kingdom's notification under Article 50 of the Treaty on European Union to exit the European Union (EU):

— the Union has consistently supported the goal of peace and reconciliation enshrined in the Good Friday Agreement, and continuing to support and protect the achievements, benefits and commitments of the Good Friday Agreement in all its parts will remain of paramount importance;

— in view of the unique position and special circumstances on the island of Ireland, flexible and imaginative solutions will be required, including the aim of avoiding a hardening of the border, including looking at designated special status for Northern Ireland within the EU, while respecting the integrity of the Union legal order as well as the Good Friday Agreement;

— given that the Good Friday Agreement is a bilateral treaty, binding in international law, between the United Kingdom and Ireland, after the United Kingdom leaves the Union, no agreement between the EU and the United Kingdom may apply to Northern Ireland without the agreement of Ireland and the United Kingdom; and — in this context, the Union should also recognise existing bilateral agreements and arrangements between the United Kingdom and Ireland which are compatible with EU law." — *Gerry Adams, John Brady, Pat Buckley, David Cullinane, Seán Crowe, Pearse Doherty, Dessie Ellis, Martin J. 187. "That Dáil Éireann:

— acknowledges the Climate Change Advisory Council's first report which states that achievement of the national mitigation objective, of an 80 per cent reduction in emissions compared to 1990 levels by 2050, will require a major societal and economic transformation;

— acknowledges the wide consensus internationally that society's transformation away from fossil fuels must ensure fairness and justice for, and the participation of, the groups and communities most affected by the scale of the change required;

— agrees, in relation to transition and the workforce, with the principle expressed in the preamble to the Paris Agreement, namely that countries should, in their actions under the Agreement, take into account 'the imperatives of a just transition of the workforce and the creation of decent work and quality jobs in accordance with nationally defined development priorities';

— notes the emergence in many countries of initiatives, policy and legislative proposals to give effect to the concept of a just transition;

— further notes the proposal at European Union (EU) level for a directive to enhance cost-effective emission reductions, low-carbon investments and which promotes just transition funding, to support local communities and workers in regions impacted most strongly by the ongoing transition to decarbonised economies; and — agrees, in relation to Ireland, that in addition to effecting its greenhouse gas reductions in the manner required by the Paris Agreement, that a national-level commitment to pursue a just transition derives from the State's obligation to achieve the 'national transition objective' as defined in the Climate Action and Low Carbon Development Act 2015, and in doing so, to have regard, under section 3 of that Act, to 'climate justice';

further acknowledges:

— the 2016 Programme for a Partnership Government, which states that 'climate change is the global challenge of our generation, and requires radical and ambitious thinking to respond to a changing environment' and that Ireland is to be 'repositioned to give global leadership in this area';

— that peat industry workers have a proud history of providing energy sovereignty to the Irish nation and many are the third and fourth generations of their families working on the bogs since the 1940s;

— that 1,700 jobs are directly dependent on the peat industry in peat plants, seasonal work in extracting peat, retail, professional and briquette factories, and a further 2,500 indirect jobs are dependent including Bord na Móna support departments, external suppliers and contractors; and — that the Public Service Obligation (PSO) levy, which provides a circa €115.5 million to €123 million subsidy to the peat plants, will end in the first half of 2020 and the urgent need to use such public funds to ensure a just transition for workers currently working in the industry; and calls on the Government to:

— replace the PSO on peat fired generation from 2019 with a just transition levy, which will re-allocate this €120 million to a new replacement levy that will fund the retraining and social protection of workers and communities affected by the closure of the peat industry;

— conduct a proactively managed, planned decline of the peat industry, in conjunction with Bord na Móna and peat industry workers, and ensure a just transition for workers and dependent communities into new areas of low-carbon employment;

— seek inclusion for the Irish peat industry in just transition funding at EU level;

— consult with communities and workers to explore investment opportunities that will enable midland regions, dependent on employment in the peat industry, to find renewable economic livelihoods with a long-term future in line with the 2016 Programme for a Partnership Government which states 'as part of the transition to a low carbon society, that citizens and communities are active participants in the transition, with robust public and stakeholder engagement in energy policy and effective community consultation on energy infrastructure developments';

— set up a Just Transition Commission that will facilitate talks between trade unions, employer organisations, affected communities and climate transition experts to oversee and deliver a durable, sustainable and fair transition to a low carbon economy for workers in the Irish fossil-fuel sector;

— work with all affected parties to support the peat industry and its workforce in moving immediately to a low carbon future, as part of an overall long-term plan to end peat extraction for industrial and horticultural use by 2020 as part of a reviewed National Peatlands Strategy; and — take a decisive lead to create employment in electricity generation, energy storage, community energy, transport infrastructure, energy efficiency and sustainable heating for homes and businesses, and rehabilitation of our bogs and national habitats." — Eamon Ryan, Catherine Martin.

notes that:

— the justification for the introduction of the Financial Emergency Measures in the Public Interests Act 2009 was the economic crisis and financial emergency that beset the country;

— by the Government's own pronouncements the financial emergency has passed;

— the Financial Emergency Measures in the Public Interests Acts 2009-2015 have been used to cut public sector workers' pay and pensions; — emergency legislation that curtails the rights of workers to free collective bargaining can no longer be justified; and — the continued use of emergency legislation, in absence of an actual emergency, is an abuse of Government power; and calls on the Government to repeal the Financial Emergency Measures in the Public Interests Acts 2009-2015 and allow public sector unions negotiate without the sanction of emergency legislation." — *Bríd Smith, Gino Kenny, Richard Boyd Barrett, Paul Murphy, Mick Barry, Ruth Coppinger, Clare Daly, Mick Wallace, Thomas P. recognises:

— that full employment, where possible, is the aim of all parties in this House;

— the need for employment support schemes such as the Community Employment (CE) scheme, Tús, the Rural Social Scheme (RSS) and JobPath; — that employment support schemes have a dual function of employment activation and social inclusion;

— that employment support schemes have assisted thousands of people into employment;

— that communities throughout Ireland have benefited immensely from work carried out under employment support schemes;

— that employment support schemes have often enabled delivery of services and local supports where State provision of same has not been fully accessible and that such schemes have been a partner of the State in supporting some of the most vulnerable communities;

— that many non-profit organisations and charities rely heavily upon employment support staff in a cycle of community provision, individual retraining and upskilling, and placement;

— that the activity facilitated by employment support schemes is worthwhile and valuable in its own right, completely aside from its contribution towards other job activation or longer term goals; and — that those who participate in employment support schemes make a valuable contribution to their communities and assist in providing often much needed and vital services in their locality; and

calls for:

— the Government to ensure that the social inclusion element of employment support schemes is recognised and supported;

— the Government to recognise that participation in employment support schemes such as the CE scheme, Tús and the RSS is dignified and gainful employment;

— the Minister for Social Protection to immediately review the impact that JobPath is having on CE schemes in particular, with a view to ensuring that those who wish to continue to participate on CE schemes are able to do so, and to also ensure that JobPath is not draining CE schemes of participants;

— an appropriate assessment be carried out at time of entry to JobPath, or shortly afterwards in a form of probationary period, to ascertain whether the individual is best suited to the proposed programme, or whether further engagement and participation in a CE scheme would be more beneficial;

— the Minister for Social Protection to immediately amend the rule to enable a participant in a JobPath programme, where they have been serving in a CE scheme immediately prior, to continue involvement in a CE scheme in parallel, subject to the requirements of availability to the JobPath programme and where it would not be detrimental to same;

— the Minister for Social Protection to immediately amend the rule whereby a person can only participate on Tús for a twelve month period and once completed is unable to participate again on Tús for three years;

— the Minister for Social Protection to ensure that the review of participation limits for older people on employment support schemes is cognisant of the complexities that older people face in trying to access or re-enter the labour market, and that employment support schemes can be the mechanism whereby older people can continue to make a contribution to society up until they reach retirement age;

— the Minister for Social Protection to ensure that the budget for employment support schemes is sufficient to cover consumable services and materials, including insurance; and — the Government to ensure that employment support schemes are adequately resourced, including training and continuous professional development, as appropriate, for supervisors." — *James Lawless, Willie O'Dea, Éamon Ó Cuív, Darragh O'Brien, Barry Cowen, Bobby Aylward, John Brassil, Declan Breathnach, James Browne, Mary Butler, Thomas Byrne, Jackie Cahill, Dara Calleary, Pat Casey, Shane Cassells, Jack Chambers, Lisa M. calls on the Minister for Children and Youth Affairs to commission a full independent audit of child protection practices within Tusla, with a particular focus on, but not limited to, their use of special powers outlined within section 13 of the Child Care Act 1991, which allows the removal of a child from their home when the child is believed to be in immediate danger." — *Donnchadh Ó Laoghaire, Gerry Adams, John Brady, Pat Buckley, Seán Crowe, David Cullinane, Pearse Doherty, Dessie Ellis, Martin J. notes:

— the publication in 2012 of the report entitled 'Acute Coronary Syndrome Programme — Model of Care', to standardise treatment of patients suffering from heart attack in its different forms in this State;

— the finding of the 2012 report that University Hospital Waterford (UHW) has the potential to develop into a 24/7 service following infrastructural and staff developments;

— the 2015 Estimate which stated that such a 24/7 service could be provided at a total annual cost of €2.7 million and capital cost of €1.9 million;

— the publication in May 2013 of the Government report entitled 'The Establishment of Hospital Groups as a transition to Independent Hospital Trusts', produced by an expert group led by Professor John Higgins and otherwise known as the Higgins Report; — that the Higgins Report recommends that UHW continue to provide invasive cardiology services for the South East population;

— that the demand for service in the single catheterisation laboratory (cath lab) in the South East has grown greatly since the inception of the lab and it has now grown beyond the infrastructure committed to it;

— the unacceptable wait times being encountered for outpatient and inpatient care which are seriously detrimental to wellbeing and arise solely because of the lack of an additional cath lab facility on the UHW campus;

— that this risk was recognised by the Health Service Executive (HSE) over several years, with the lack of a second facility identified as a critical risk on the formal HSE risk register;

— that the Programme for a Partnership Government committed to the development of a second cath lab at UHW subject to a favourable recommendation from an independent clinical review;

— the publication of a report entitled 'Independent Clinical Review of Provision of a Second Catheterisation Laboratory at University Hospital Waterford', otherwise known as the Herity Report; — that the South East region is the only region nationally without a 24/7 cardiac care service; and — that multiple worldwide clinical assessments of primary emergency coronary angioplasty and stenting for Sinus Tachycardia elevated heart attack have been demonstrated to only be effective if carried out soon after the first presentation of symptoms of heart attack;

further notes:

— that the Herity Report calls for the current limited hours provision of Primary Percutaneous Coronary Intervention (PPCI) at UHW cease entirely;

— that this would result in all emergency cardiac patients in the South East having to travel to hospitals in Cork or Dublin for treatment;

— the inadequacy of the current air ambulance service to meet the needs of patients in the South East;

— the poor road infrastructure between UHW and Cork University Hospital; and — the need to enhance ambulance services and response times;

calls on the Government to:

— immediately initiate a second independent review into the provision of cardiac care in the South East; and — ensure that work on the review commences within six weeks of the passing of this motion and that a speedy conclusion is reached, cognisant of the sensitive issues involved; agrees that the terms of reference for this regional review will be:

— agreed by all parties and groups in this House prior to commencement and framed in the context of existing regional policy;

— based on the need for 24/7 PPCI at UHW to ensure safe and accessible emergency cardiac care for the population of the South East;

— based on clinical and medical need and underpinned by the National Clinical Programme and consult widely and appropriately with regional clinicians and medical experts;

— based on the actual population of the South East and not an arbitrary effective catchment population; and — cognisant of the range of travel times to hospitals outside the region and not simply the average time; and further agrees that the review will:

— respect the status of UHW as a regional hospital providing a regional cardiac service;

— identify need and capacity based on the geographical area the hospital serves, namely the population of the South East; and — deliver on the commitment in the Higgins Report, that UHW continues to provide interventional cardiac care to patients in the South East." — Micheál Martin and all other members of the Fianna Fáil parliamentary party, Gerry Adams and all other members of the Sinn Féin parliamentary party, Brendan Howlin and all other members of the Labour parliamentary party, Eamon Ryan, Catherine Martin, Michael Collins, Noel Grealish, Michael Harty, Danny Healy-Rae, Michael Healy-Rae, Michael Lowry, Mattie McGrath, Clare Daly, Mick Wallace.

— 2017 marks the 102nd anniversary of the Armenian Genocide which occurred in the Ottoman Empire between 1915 and 1916;

— as of 2017, twenty-nine countries have recognised the Armenian Genocide and that only Turkey, the successor state of the Ottoman Empire, and Azerbaijan explicitly deny the historical factuality of the Armenian Genocide;

— in 1985, the United Nations (UN) Sub-Commission on the Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities received a report from the Special Rapporteur and Sub-Commission member Benjamin Whitaker entitled 'Revised and Updated Report on the Question of the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide', which found the Ottoman Empire had systematically massacred Armenians during World War One;

— Whitaker's report also cited the Armenian Genocide as meeting the criteria for the UN definition of genocide, defining it as one of the genocides of the 20th century and his report was received and noted by a resolution at the 38th session of the UN's Sub-Commission on the Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities in 1985;

— in 1997, the International Association of Genocide Scholars (IAGS) passed a resolution unanimously recognising the Ottoman massacres of Armenians as genocide and, in 2007, the IAGS passed three different resolutions which were extended to include the Assyrian Genocide and the Pontian and Anatolian Greek Genocide among the affected minorities;

— the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe recognised the Armenian Genocide on 14th May, 2001; and — on 15th April, 2015, the European Parliament backed a motion acknowledging the killing of 1.5 million Armenians by Ottoman Turkish forces as genocide, after passing similar motions in 1987, 2000, 2002 and 2005;
