- urges the Minister for Health and the HSE to expedite the provision of the long promised dedicated isolation unit at St. Vincent's Hospital, Dublin; and
- calls on the Government, pending the construction of this unit, to provide temporary isolation beds to reduce the risk of cross infection.” — Jan O'Sullivan, Eamon

- recognising the need for greater supports for adult education and the importance of adult learning to the continued growth of the economy;
- considering the low level of participation of Irish adults in ongoing education and training estimated to be at just 8% of the workforce, compared to 35% in Sweden, 29% in the UK and well below the EU target of 12.5%;
- noting the Government’s failure to act on the commitment in Towards 2016 to put in place a targeted fund to alleviate fees in public institutions for part-time courses at third level by those at work who have not previously pursued a third level qualification;
- recognising the fundamental injustice that exists in the exclusion of low paid workers from obtaining financial support through the Back to Education Allowance;
- accepting the need for a more co-ordinated and focused approach to the development of adult education nationally; and
- noting that the proportion of the FÁS budget currently spent on upskilling those in employment is only 5%;

calls on the Government to:

- use the National Training Fund to introduce a voucher scheme for individuals who have not already benefited from higher education to pay for courses in higher educational institutions, whether taken on a part-time or full-time basis;
 - introduce two-week statutory annual paid training leave, financed out of the NTF and paid at the minimum wage rate in order to focus on low-skilled workers;
 - reconsider the eligibility criteria for the Back to Education Allowance scheme to include low-paid workers;
 - immediately publish the review of the National Adult Learning Council and re-introduce a co-ordinating structure for the adult education sector;
 - provide dedicated funding for English language training for speakers of other languages; and
 - honour its Programme for Government commitment to provide improved guidance and ancillary supports for the adult education sector, including child care services.”
