19. “That Dáil Éireann:

notes that over the last number of years there has been a significant increase in resources allocated to education and training including:

- the increase of primary teacher numbers from 21,000 to over 37,000 with a reduction in the pupil/teacher ratio from 22:1 to 16:1;
- the introduction of a wide range of new special education schemes underpinned by the expansion of the number of special needs assistants from 250 to over 10,000;
- the expansion in third-level participation from 100,000 students to almost 160,000; and

- the creation of research programmes which have brought Ireland to a world-leading position in key areas and are currently underpinning the majority of job-creating investments in Ireland;

further acknowledges that in spite of these and other improvements there remain significant issues within the education and training system which require to be addressed; believes that education and training will be a central part in economic recovery and job creation in the months and years ahead; and therefore states its belief that education and training should be protected as a priority area for funding in future budgets.” — *Micheál Martin, John Browne, Dara Calleary, Niall Collins, Barry Cowen, Timmy Dooley, Seán Fleming, Billy Kelleher, Seamus Kirk, Michael P.
