183. “That Dáil Éireann:

recognises the importance of a well-functioning Freedom of Information (FOI) regime in establishing trust and transparency in public life;

notes, with concern:

- the recent admissions that the Tánaiste and the Minister for Foreign Affairs have both deleted relevant material from their mobile phones; and
- that public confidence in political life has been eroded and will continue to be eroded without action; and calls on the Government to:

- establish robust procedures in each Department to ensure that Ministers are no longer destroying records that should be maintained by the Department;
- ensure that all Ministers are aware of their responsibilities under FOI legislation, all relevant documents and materials are retained as required and all FOI requests are appropriately dealt with, and all relevant material is provided when requested;
- enhance the powers of the Information Commissioner's Office to allow the Commissioner to refer complaints under FOI legislation to the Standards in Public Office Commission for investigation, where it is believed that a public body, Minister

Amendment (resumed):

1. To delete all words after “Dáil Éireann” and substitute the following:

“recognises the importance of a well-functioning Freedom of Information (FOI) regime in establishing trust and transparency in public life; and

notes that:

- the objective of Freedom of Information legislation is to ensure openness and transparency around the conduct of the business of public bodies and to enable members of the public to obtain access to their personal information;
- in broad terms, indications are that Ireland’s FOI system is functioning well;
- the number of FOI requests dealt with by relevant bodies increased from approximately 15,000 in 2010 to over 41,000 in 2019;
- the FOI regime covers a wide range of sectors, including Government Departments, State bodies, the Health Service Executive, voluntary hospitals, mental health services, third level institutions and local authorities;
- the Freedom of Information Act 2014 provides that FOI applies to an entity by default where it meets certain criteria;
- in 2020, even as every individual and organisation in the country was significantly impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic, 32,652 FOI requests were processed by public bodies;
- approximately four out of every five FOI requests were granted in full or in part, which is broadly in line with previous years and over half of the requests processed are for individuals’ personal information;
- review mechanisms are available for those who are not satisfied with the FOI decision received and internal reviews - those conducted at a more senior level on a particular request with the relevant public body - account for about three per cent of requests in most years and independent reviews by the Information Commissioner are sought in about one per cent of cases annually;
- there is scope to improve and strengthen the FOI regime;
- the Minister for Public Expenditure and Reform announced in June 2021 that his Department will undertake a comprehensive and careful review of the Freedom of Information Act 2014 that will:
  - consider the experience of all stakeholders;
  - take account of the transformation in the manner in which people seek, consume and interact with information since the Freedom of Information Act 2014 came into effect;

- review international good practice and developments; and
- consult with the Office of the Information Commissioner and other key stakeholders in the data/information space;
- a consultation on the scope of the review will take place later this year, with further consultations to be undertaken in 2022; and
- while it is intended that the scoping consultation will determine the key themes of the review, the interaction between the FOI legislation, data protection legislation and records management requirements will be considered as part of the review.” — An tAire Caiteachais Phoiblí agus Athchóirithe.

184. “That Dáil Éireann, pursuant to Standing Order 77:

notes that:

- on 19th August, 2020, Mr. Justice Séamus Woulfe attended a dinner organised by the Oireachtas Golf Society in Clifden, Co. Galway;
- public health regulations in force at that time made it an offence to organise an indoor social event where the numbers attending exceeded 50 persons (other than in a private dwelling);
- the dinner at Clifden had around 80 attendees, significantly in excess of the 50 persons permitted;
- the Government had announced new guidelines on 18th August, 2020, which restricted the numbers permitted at an indoor social event to six persons;
- while these new guidelines did not immediately have the force of law, they did reflect the urgent advice of public health experts in the context of a highly contagious disease;
- Mr. Justice Woulfe’s attendance at an event which was inconsonant with both the public health regulations in force and those which had been publicly announced the day previously, had the effect of undermining the public health effort, which all in society were being urged to participate in, given the grave threat of the spread of Covid-19; and
- Mr. Justice Woulfe’s subsequent response to the public controversy in relation to his attendance at this dinner, as illustrated by the transcript of his interview with Ms. Justice Susan Denham and his correspondence with Mr. Justice Frank Clarke, further undermined the public health effort; and calls for the removal, pursuant to Article 35.4.1<sup>o</sup> of the Constitution of Ireland, of Mr. Justice Séamus Woulfe, Judge of the Supreme Court, from office for stated misbehaviour, being his conduct in and in relation to attending the Oireachtas Golf Society dinner in Clifden on 19th August, 2020, undermining the public health effort during a pandemic, and thereby rendering himself unsuitable to exercise the office of a Judge of the Supreme Court.” — Paul Murphy, Bríd Smith, Richard Boyd Barrett, Gino Kenny.

- calls on the World Trade Organization (WTO) to allow all countries to choose to neither grant nor enforce patents and other intellectual property related to Covid-19 drugs, vaccines, diagnostics and other technologies for the duration of the pandemic;
- mandates the Government to demand that European Union policy is changed so as it votes at the WTO to allow this to occur, and Ireland should support the proposal brought forward by India and South Africa to suspend aspects of the WTO TRIPS Agreement until the pandemic is over; and
- calls for full open disclosure of all scientific and clinical trial data related to the development and production of such vaccines, and should this occur, further calls for the convocation of an expert panel to independently analyse the data and develop public health communication strategies based on their findings, that aim to increase public trust and participation in the immunisation process.” — Richard Boyd Barrett, Mick Barry, Gino Kenny, Paul Murphy, Brid Smith.

186. “That Dáil Éireann:

notes that:

- the Comprehensive Economic Trade Agreement’s (CETA) Investment Court System (ICS), a rebranded version of the Investor State Dispute Settlement (ISDS) system, does not address many of the contentious and problematic aspects of its predecessor;
- the new ICS will still grant foreign corporations a special status that allows them to seek compensation outside the ordinary national legal systems used by all other parties;
- under European Union (EU) law existing mechanisms are already in place to deal with any complaints by investors;
- in 2017, a European Court of Justice judgement made clear that any agreement to introduce ISDS/ICS must be considered and decided by each member state and that decision cannot be delegated to EU level;
- roughly half of the EU member states, including Germany and Italy, have yet to ratify the ICS amid various ongoing legal and political debates;
- many new trade deals are actively avoiding unnecessary and controversial elements such as investor courts, including the trade deal between the EU and Britain, the EU-China Comprehensive Agreement on Investment, and the EU-Japan Economic Partnership Agreement; and
- given that the trade aspects of CETA have already been in force since 2017, ratification of CETA by the Dáil effectively amounts to ratification of the ICS;

acknowledges that:

- the Government has proposed for CETA/ICS to be scrutinised by the Oireachtas Committee on European Union Affairs, however, due to the scope and breadth of CETA covering all sectors including workers’ rights, health, environment, housing, justice and many others, it is imperative that all relevant Oireachtas Committees are afforded the opportunity to debate on this far-reaching and inter-generational proposal;

- the threat of being sued under an ICS of the kind created by CETA has potential to create a chilling effect on the Government’s ability or willingness to implement policy in the interest of the public good;
- ratifying CETA could expose Ireland to unnecessary risks, with no gain;
- chapter twenty-four of CETA: Trade and Environment is very weak when it comes to legal enforceability, in contrast to the strong provisions to protect investors and any references to sustainability, environmental protection, and adherence to international climate agreements are only aspirational and voluntary in nature; and
- the combination of weak environmental protections as contained in CETA, and large pay-outs resulting from existing dispute mechanisms to large energy companies, reveals that the environment has the most to lose from the new ICS which forces national governments to pull back on ambitious climate action policies and regulation; and calls for:

- all relevant Oireachtas Committees to scrutinise the new ICS mechanism and any outstanding aspects of CETA before any vote takes place;
- a full Dáil debate on the remaining aspects of CETA, in particular the ICS, before any vote is held in the Oireachtas; and
- a full risk analysis of CETA before any final ratification of the ICS provision is applied.” — Jennifer Whitmore, Holly Cairns, Gary Gannon, Catherine Murphy, Cian O’Callaghan, Róisín Shortall.

187. “That Dáil Éireann:

recognises that:

- many forms of organised crime are rising year-on-year in Ireland;
- controlled drug offences have increased by 8.7 per cent, weapons and explosives offences have increased by 12.3 per cent, and homicide and related offences have increased by 7.2 per cent from quarter 3, 2019, to quarter 3, 2020;
- funds seized by the authorities, including those by An Garda Síochána and the Criminal Assets Bureau, have also increased significantly over previous years from €7.44 million in 2019 to over €16 million in 2020;
- within the first month of 2021 over €2 million was seized;
- seized funds are not specifically allocated but put back into the Exchequer for general Government spending;
- there are international examples for channelling seized funds and confiscated assets back into community specific programmes, such as in France and New Zealand; and
- there are international examples for the effectiveness of community-focused programmes to prevent crime, such as in Scotland through the Violence Reduction Unit;

declares that:

- Ireland should adopt changes in our approach to seized cash and assets, and follow international examples to channel seized funds back into the societal causes of crime;

- funds seized by the authorities from illegal activity and organised crime should be ring-fenced and channelled back into the worst impacted communities through intervention projects; and
- these funds would follow the model of violence and crime reduction and be allocated towards addiction counsellors, social workers, youth diversion programmes, training courses, education schemes, awareness programmes and more; and

calls on the Government to:

- produce a national strategy on violence and crime reduction to complement the An Garda Síochána Crime Prevention and Reduction Strategy - Putting Prevention First;
- recognise that seized funds should be ring-fenced to address the societal causes of crime;
- legislate to ring-fence seized funds to prevent said funds from being channelled back to the Exchequer; and
- allocate said ring-fenced funds to community and violence reduction projects where they are most needed, such as towards addiction counsellors, social workers, youth diversion programmes, training courses, education schemes, awareness programmes and more.” — Neale Richmond.

188. “That Dáil Éireann:

notes that:

- breast cancer accounts for around 30 per cent of all invasive cancers for women, with around 3,000 cases a year;
- Ireland had the eighth highest incidence rate and fifth highest mortality rate for female breast cancer in the European Union in 2020;
- women aged between 50 and 64 have been screened for breast cancer since 2018, and this was subsequently extended to age 69;
- in 2015:
  - 49 per cent of cases were accounted for in those aged between 50 and 69;
  - almost a quarter of cases occurred in women under the age of 50, and therefore outside of the screening process; and
  - over 200 cases were among women under the age of 40, accounting for 7 per cent of all cases;
- between 1994 and 2016, rates of breast cancer in women under the age of 50 increased by, on average, 1 per cent per year, from 34.2 per 100,000 in 1994 to 45.1 per 100,000 in 2016;
- the percentage of younger women with a late stage (III or IV) diagnosis increased from 18 per cent between 1994 and 1999 to 22 per cent between 2008 and 2015;
- in contrast, there was a large increase in the percentage presenting with stage I cancer for women in the screening age-group (50-64 years), from 23 per cent between 1994 and 1999 to 44 per cent between 2008 and 2015;

- the rate of increase in late stage breast cancer was 2.4 per cent per year for younger women, while the rate for women in the screening age band was 0.4 per cent;
- the National Cancer Registry Ireland has said that ‘This suggests that there has been some stage replacement in the women who are eligible for screening’;
- screening from age 40 takes place in a number of countries, such as Austria, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Slovakia and Portugal;
- in some regions in Sweden where screening was introduced for 40-49 year olds, the death rate reduced by 26 per cent compared to regions that didn’t;
- young women generally face more aggressive cancers and lower survival rates as well as being more liable to get cancer due to genetic mutations;
- women under 40 years of age are reporting that they are finding it hard to access early diagnosis;
- there is no national data on the proportion of breast cancer cases which are due to the BReast CAncer gene (BRCA) mutations and no comprehensive national policy on genetics and genetic testing in Ireland;
- while Ireland has established criteria for genetic testing for hereditary breast cancer, these are more restrictive than in many other European countries;
- Ireland does not make genetic testing available to all asymptomatic women at high risk of BRCA related breast cancer;
- waiting times for an initial public consultation, genetic testing and counselling are high, placing a burden on people waiting for tests and potentially delaying initiation of necessary treatment;
- women are being forced to seek private genetic testing at a cost of up to €1,800; and
- poorer women are therefore barred from accessing this service; and therefore, calls on the Government to:

- introduce screening for breast cancer from the age of 40, provided by publicly funded and run programmes;
- guarantee immediate access to diagnostics services for young women at risk of breast cancer;
- ensure access to a triple assessment for young women who present with possible breast cancer;
- immediately revise the criteria for access to genetic testing so that all women at high risk of the BRCA related breast cancer have access to genetic testing and genetic counselling in the public health system; and
- initiate a publicly funded education programme in schools in relation to breast examination.” — Gino Kenny, Brid Smith, Richard Boyd Barrett, Paul Murphy.

189. “That Dáil Éireann:

notes:

- that breastfeeding is the biologically normal way to feed babies and is optimum for the mental and physical health of babies, as well as being protective of multiple health risks for mothers;

- that according to the Irish Maternity Indicator System National Report 2019, Ireland's breastfeeding initiation rate is one of the lowest in the world at 63.8 per cent compared to rates of 90 per cent in Australia and 81 per cent in the United Kingdom, and by the time babies leave hospital just 37.3 per cent are exclusively breastfed;
- the World Health Organization's (WHO) global ambition is to improve maternal, infant and young child nutrition by 2025 includes the target of at least 50 per cent rate of exclusive breastfeeding in the first six months of a baby's life, however, in Ireland the exclusive breastfeeding rate stands at only 6 per cent compared with the global average of 38 per cent and the European average of 25 per cent (WHO, 2013);
- that most women want to breastfeed but face a range of barriers including, limited access to education in schools, antenatal education and lactation consultation, insufficient in-hospital/community/work supports, social disadvantage and a lack of an overall supportive culture of breastfeeding in Irish society;
- the recent announcement of funding to the Health Service Executive (HSE) for an additional 24 lactation consultants across Irish maternity hospitals and units but notes that there are currently only 30.39 Whole Time Equivalent (WTE) dedicated lactation consultant posts, an increase of just 12.97 WTE posts in the last four years, with 9.5 posts under recruitment;
- that massive variations in breastfeeding rates exist between urban and rural areas, according to 2019 figures, with 44 per cent in Donegal, 53 per cent in Wexford and 49 per cent in Waterford, compared to 84 per cent in Dublin South East, and these rates coincide with a stark regional divide in the provision of lactation consultants across Irish hospitals and are most evident in these counties where hospitals have no lactation consultant posts at all;
- the crucial work that in-hospital staff and primary care staff undergo to support women breastfeeding with very limited resources, working in understaffed postnatal wards;
- that since funding ceased for the Baby-Friendly Hospital Initiative (BFHI) in 2017, there has been no independent assessment of maternity units in Ireland, however, acknowledges the recent commitment by the HSE to dedicated implementation supports for the initiative this year;
- the slow progress in implementing the Creating a Better Future Together – National Maternity Strategy 2016-2026 and the HSE Breastfeeding in a Healthy Ireland – Health Service Breastfeeding Action Plan 2016-2021, to date;
- that May 19th is the internationally designated World Day of Human Milk Donation, a day to promote the importance of donating human milk to non-profit human milk banks;
- that the Republic of Ireland currently has no milk bank and relies solely on breast milk donations from the Western Trust Human Milk Bank in Northern Ireland, for infants in need, and there is no national policy on the provision of donor human milk, resulting in an unequal supply to babies across hospitals in the State;
- that May 21st marks the 40th anniversary of the adoption of the International Code of Marketing of Breast-milk Substitutes, which Ireland, unfortunately still has not fully implemented and which has led to a continued lack of regulation on formula products for babies after six months of age and health workers' vulnerability to various marketing practices; and

- that the economic cost of low breastfeeding rates in the country is estimated to cost the State €800 million annually and most crucial is the potential cost to life, where it is estimated that up to 823,000 deaths in infants aged under five and 20,000 deaths in women from breast cancer occur worldwide, which, according to Victora et al., The Lancet (2016) and the WHO, could be prevented if breastfeeding were scaled up globally to universal levels; and acknowledges:

- the urgent need for improved access to breastfeeding supports before, during and after pregnancy, in hospital settings, within the home and workplace and in public, to further the development of a supportive and open breastfeeding culture in the country with committed funding in Budget 2022 for breastfeeding supports;
- that this year marks the end of the current HSE Breastfeeding in a Healthy Ireland – Health Service Breastfeeding Action Plan 2016-2021 and welcomes the extension of the plan into 2022;
- the recent announcement of funding for an additional 24 lactation consultants, but notes the barrier to progress remains with recruitment and that previous funding commitments, since 2020, have still not resulted in hospital posts being filled and the HSE must ensure that these posts are dedicated time;
- that the new Breastfeeding Policy for Staff working in the Public Health Service came into effect in February, 2021, supporting health staff to continue to breastfeed on return to work following maternity leave, allowing for 1-hour paid breastfeeding/pumping breaks until a child's second birthday;
- that all new and existing maternity and paediatric hospitals should be breastfeeding friendly by adopting the WHO/United Nations Children's Fund updated BFHI for Neonatal Wards (Neo-BFHI) standards initiated in other European countries which includes criteria for standards of care, discharge planning, post-discharge assessment, and routine specialist support for mothers;
- that the delivery of the proposed National Maternity Hospital and National Children's Hospital provides a once in a lifetime opportunity to transform breastfeeding services in this country;
- and welcomes the development of a new Code of Marketing of Breast Milk Substitutes in public health services currently in its final draft and due for implementation across all health services in 2021, but highlights the urgent need to incorporate strong regulation of marketing practices in Ireland within the new Code, in line with the WHO's International Code of Marketing of Breast-milk Substitutes and subsequent relevant World Health Assembly (WHA) resolutions; and
- the need to tackle socio-economic barriers to breastfeeding through targeted supports for vulnerable groups, including people with disabilities, younger mothers, and women from the Traveller community, as much of the recent research on breastfeeding support has found that women need tailored support, not a one-size fits all approach with specific supports aimed at marginalised groups; and

calls on the Government to:

- establish a new, ambitious, interdepartmental, cross-party breastfeeding action plan after the current extension, with measurable targets, data collection, regular reporting and wider stakeholder involvement including the Neo-BFHI Ten Steps to Successful Breastfeeding and ensure the new plan pays particular attention to addressing socio-economic barriers to breastfeeding and barriers facing marginalised women;
- commit to the establishment of a community-owned, not-for-profit human milk bank

- in the Republic of Ireland with ties to the National Maternity Hospital, including a 24-hour depot and links to research, whilst maintaining existing access to the Western Trust Human Milk Bank in Northern Ireland;
- draft a national human milk donation policy for babies in the State, to ensure equal access of donated milk to infants across the Republic of Ireland;
  - develop an infant feeding emergency preparedness plan as recommended by the WHO, to ensure safe access and safe preparation of infant formula and to include the protection of breastfeeding during a crisis, i.e. non-separation of mothers and babies, and access to pumping equipment should separation happen;
  - ensure dedicated funding is provided for in Budget 2022 for the full implementation of the existing Creating a Better Future Together – National Maternity Strategy 2016-2026 and the HSE Breastfeeding in a Healthy Ireland – Health Service Breastfeeding Action Plan 2016-2021 and beyond the one year extension of the current breastfeeding action plan;
  - publish a comprehensive implementation report on key performance indicators of the current HSE Breastfeeding in a Healthy Ireland – Health Service Breastfeeding Action Plan 2016-2021, in order to determine whether it has the potential to bring about radical changes in approaches to breastfeeding supports in the Irish healthcare system;
  - recruit the outstanding 33.5 International Board Certified Lactation Consultant (IBCLC) posts within the maternity system through a well-funded, rigorous and focused recruitment drive, with a particular emphasis on regions significantly underrepresented, such as, the North West and South/South East regions which currently have zero hospital lactation consultants, and ensure that these posts are dedicated time;
  - join the other 98 countries by participating in the World Breastfeeding Trends Initiative, to help comprehensively identify all areas for improvement in the Irish context;
  - provide more funds directed to independent breastfeeding research in Ireland;
  - extend and regularise workplace supports as contained in the new Breastfeeding Policy for Staff working in the Public Health Service to all sectors, including the provision of lactation breaks to all breastfeeding mothers up to two years, in line with the HSE, Civil Service and education sector, and address the inconsistency in breastfeeding supports for staff, including breastfeeding rooms, across all Government departments and agencies;
  - provide for free hospital grade electric breast pumps at all Irish maternity and paediatric hospitals and for home use, alongside milk containers and pump connectors;
  - target all new mothers with one visit at home, free of charge, from a qualified IBCLC, while, in the interim, all public health nurses and general practitioners should have access to an IBCLC for referral of a mother and baby free of charge and in the meantime, provide funding for training of Public Health Nurses in line with IBCLC and funding, community and peer-to-peer groups in line with IBCLC; and
  - urgently implement the remaining aspects of the WHO's International Code of Marketing of Breast-milk Substitutes and subsequent relevant WHA resolutions, to ensure full regulation of formula products for babies after six months and other negative marketing practices, and strongly calls for the State to replace the private sector sponsorship of various initiatives that promote formula feeding, including promotional material, sponsorship of helplines and other fundraising activities.” — Jennifer Whitmore.

190. “That Dáil Éireann:

notes that:

- in the first eight days of this Israel-Palestine conflict, over 60 children have been murdered by the Israeli Defence Forces;
- the current escalation of violence was instigated by the attempt to ethnically cleanse 28 Palestinian families from the Sheikh Jarrah area of Jerusalem, as part of an ongoing and systematic campaign of illegal Israeli settlements and ethnic cleansing of Palestinians from their land;
- Israel’s current military actions in Gaza, similar murderous attacks over recent years and the siege of Gaza amount to war crimes;
- the ongoing ethnic cleansing of Palestinians, and illegal settlement expansion into Palestinian land, represent flagrant breaches of international law; and
- the Israeli Ambassador’s presence in Ireland is untenable in these circumstances; and therefore, calls on the Government to expel the Israeli Ambassador to Ireland in response to this continuing violence against Palestinians and that he should be expelled with immediate effect.” — Gino Kenny, Richard Boyd Barrett, Paul Murphy, Brid Smith, Mick Barry, Thomas Pringle, Joan Collins, Richard O’Donoghue, Gary Gannon.

191. “That Dáil Éireann:

notes that:

- given the urgency to act on climate change and the international 2030/50 climate action commitments, the Programme for Government: Our Shared Future has ambitious targets, not least the Climate Action and Low Carbon Development (Amendment) Act 2021, which received overwhelming cross-party support;
- currently, embodied carbon associated with construction materials produces 11 per cent of CO<sub>2</sub> emissions globally and this stark figure will require the construction sector to evaluate its procurement methodologies in order to cut embodied carbon emissions in line with our climate action commitments;
- embodied carbon emissions are generated from the following processes associated with construction material:
  - extraction of the materials;
  - quantity of the materials;
  - manufacture, fabrication, construction, maintenance, and end of life; and
  - the transportation emissions between all of these actions;
- over the last decade, Ireland has seen some of the most progressive regulations in the world, with the implementation of green energy policies, including Part L of the Building Regulations (Conservation of Fuel and Energy – Dwellings) in 2008, 2011 and 2019;

- these regulations have fostered innovation in the construction sector, enabling Irish contractors and building professionals to be at the cutting-edge of energy efficiency in Europe, and the Part L regulations have also made our homes warmer, ventilated and brought more people out of fuel poverty than any other policy;
  - embodied carbon is currently not measured in Ireland, and what is not measured is not managed or reduced;
  - without measurement of carbon emissions associated with the products used to construct buildings there is a lack of transparency;
  - globally, governments have been adopting mechanisms to measure and reduce the embodied carbon of buildings and the products used to construct them and these include the use of Environmental Product Declarations or, for example, in Holland the use of Environmental Cost Indicators, and further to this the European Union (EU) Commission has created Level(s) – A common EU framework of core sustainability indicators for office and residential buildings, which is a reporting system to encourage governments to measure the full carbon impact of buildings and their components across their life cycle;
  - the ‘Climate Action Plan 2019 – To Tackle Climate Breakdown’ includes several actions to support the development of low embodied carbon materials from the agricultural and forestry sector, including:
    - prioritising decarbonisation as part of enterprise agency strategies (Action 36);
    - increasing the use of low carbon materials (Action 118);
    - implementing the Forestry Programme 2014-2020 (Action 116); and
    - the National Bioeconomy Implementation Group mandated to examine the circular bioeconomy potential of harnessing the value from side-streams from both agriculture and forestry (Action 117);
  - the recent Sustainable finance taxonomy – Regulation (EU) 2020/852 on what can be considered green investment now require evaluation of embodied carbon for larger buildings;
  - the Climate Action and Low Carbon Development (Amendment) Act 2021 commits Ireland to net-zero carbon emissions by 2050, Ireland is therefore obliged to bring forward targets for the phased reduction and regulation of embodied carbon in construction, as is already happening in other European countries such as Denmark, the Netherlands, Sweden, France and Finland; and
  - setting carbon limits is the most effective means for the decarbonisation of buildings across their full life cycle; and
- urges the Government to:
- bring forward a plan for the regulation of embodied carbon in construction, as is already happening in other European countries;
  - immediately require the measurement of embodied carbon in all publicly funded projects and set appropriate limit values;

- instruct the Department of Public Expenditure and Reform, and the Construction Sector Group established by that Department, to make carbon management and climate change action a central part of their remit, and the group should also be given the remit of looking at improving the productivity of the construction sector, including actions on modern methods of construction and digitalisation, and efficiency of construction from a carbon management perspective is also critical and must be addressed within this group;
- modify the Department of Public Expenditure and Reform Public Spending Code for the appraisal of capital investment projects (circular 18/2019) to consider the embodied carbon of projects;
- instruct the Minister for Housing, Local Government and Heritage to issue guidance to the local authorities on evaluation of embodied carbon within their development plans; and
- instruct the Department of Housing, Local Government and Heritage to begin the process of developing appropriate building regulations, setting out time relevant targets to meet the national climate change 2030/50 commitments.” — Francis Noel Duffy, Steven Matthews, Patrick Costello, Neasa Hourigan, Marc Ó Cathasaigh, Brian Leddin.
