12. “That Seanad Éireann,

notes with concern that:

- Ireland has suffered the longest and deepest recession of any euro-zone country because of reckless domestic management of the economy;
- investment, consumption, employment and living standards continued to decline in the first quarter of this year;
- the seasonally-adjusted numbers of the Live Register rose by a further 5,800 in June and the actual number claiming now exceeds 450,000 for the first time ever;
- the Government plans to cut a further €14 billion from investment spending in between 2011-14 compared with the original commitments in the National Development Plan;
- the estimated taxpayer losses from the Government’s banking strategy has reached €25 billion and is rising, even as it has failed to restore credit availability to industry; and
- market confidence in the Government’s economic plan is declining, as evidenced by the rising gap between Irish and German borrowing costs.

Calls on the Government to:

- recognise that its economic plan is failing to undo the loss of international financial market confidence in Ireland;
- put jobs and industry growth at the centre of its economic strategy;
- review its banking strategy to limit the taxpayers’ exposure and to focus resources on supporting new lending to viable businesses;
- delay further cuts to investment spending until employment starts to recover; and
- restructure and re-capitalise the semi-state utilities in order to raise the necessary commercial funding to accelerate investments in water, high speed broadband and clean energy.”.

Leasú:

Amendment:

1. To delete all words after “Seanad Éireann” and substitute the following:—

“commends the Government for:

- its management of the economy which means that Ireland has emerged from recession with the strongest GDP growth rate of the euro area in the first quarter of this year;
- the policies it is pursuing to maintain credibility and sustainability in the public finances, which have been recognised internationally;
- the initiatives taken by the Government to preserve the stability of the banking system and to address the issue of asset quality in the banking system through strengthening the banks balance sheets in order to facilitate the flow of credit to viable borrowers and thereby underpin economic recovery;
- the measures taken to protect employment including the Stabilisation Fund, the Temporary Employment Subsidy and the PRSI Exemption scheme with the result that employment levels remain at nearly 1.9 million people, which is about half a million more than in 1997;
- the measures taken to provide additional opportunities in education, training and work placement for the unemployed to assist them in returning to the labour market;

and notes that:

- confidence has improved and spending on discretionary items such as cars has increased;
- the Government has kept spending for investment at high levels relative to national income by international standards;
- the public finances are stabilising and are generally in line with expectations for this point in the year;
- whilst the labour market has deteriorated significantly recently, nearly 1.9 million people are still in employment, which is about half a million more than in 1997;
- virtually all OECD countries have experienced major economic and financial difficulties over the past two years or so;
- notwithstanding volatility on foreign sovereign debt markets, the NTMA has at the mid year point, raised over 80 per cent of the funding requirements for 2010 and we are in a comfortable position with regard to funding this year and even if we did no further borrowing this year, existing cash reserves would cover our borrowing requirements for the remainder of the year;
- the Government through its ongoing management will continue to address the economic, fiscal and banking sector issues facing the country over the coming years in a responsible and sustainable manner.”.

—Senator Donie Cassidy.

13. “That Seanad Éireann affirms that each Senator should vote according to his or her conscience on the Civil Partnership and Certain Rights and Obligations of Cohabitants Bill 2009 and, accordingly, calls on all political parties to allow a free vote to their members when any vote is called on the Bill itself, or on its individual sections, or on any amendment tabled.”.

15. “That Seanad Éireann;

noting—

- the publication of the new Quality Standards for End-of-Life Care in Hospitals;
- that the majority of people now die outside the home, usually in some form of hospital;
- that the first National Audit of End-of-Life Care in Hospitals indicated that the great majority of patients had been admitted via Emergency Departments and that one-fifth could have died at home if sufficient supports were available;
- the lack of single rooms and private spaces in our hospitals;
- the significant regional deficits in hospice and bereavement support services;
- the report of the Forum on End of Life initiated by the Irish Hospice Foundation which reflects Ireland’s views, values and concerns regarding dying, death and bereavement;

considering—

- the potential for more people to die at home rather than in hospital;
- that hospice care is more cost effective and delivers better quality of care;
- the lack of guidelines in some hospitals regarding end-of-life care;
- the need for more training of hospital staff in end-of-life care skills including bereavement support;
- the need to ensure that ‘no one should die alone, frightened and in pain’
- the need to improve the physical environment of hospitals for people facing end of life;
- the recognition that end-of-life care extends into bereavement care for those affected by death;
- the need to ensure when people look for bereavement support they get the most appropriate help and not just the help that is available;

calls on Government to:

- develop measures to allow people die in their homes rather than in hospital, where this is their choice;
- allocate resources so that more people can access comprehensive hospice services in their community;
- ensure that national guidelines are operational in all acute and community hospitals to address all key end-of-life care issues;
- develop systems to enable effective gathering of data on deaths in hospitals;
- ensure ongoing auditing of end-of-life care and the introduction of a system for review of deaths in hospitals in which bereaved families can participate;
- ensure training for healthcare and support staff in end-of-life care skills, bereavement support and advance care planning;
- establish a grants fund to support projects which will enhance the environment of hospitals and other locations where people face the end of life; and to
- develop and resource a comprehensive End-of-Life Care Strategy for Ireland which will incorporate and update the work of the National Advisory Committee on Palliative Care (2001) and the NOSP Petrus Review of Bereavement Support (2007).”.

16. “That Seanad Éireann:

notes with concern that:

- Ireland continues to suffer the longest and deepest recession of any euro-zone country because of reckless domestic management of the economy;
- Consumer spending, output, employment and living standards continued to decline in the second quarter of this year;
- the seasonally-adjusted numbers of the Live Register rose by a further 21,500 in the period April to August and the actual number claiming the dole now exceeds 466,000 for the first time ever;
- the estimated taxpayer losses from the Government’s banking strategy has now reached €28 billion, even as data from the European Central Bank confirms that credit availability for industry continues to worsen;
- domestic and international confidence in the Government’s economic plan is evaporating, as evidenced by the alarming rise in the gap between Irish and German borrowing costs;
- the Government plans to cut a further €14 billion from investment spending in between 2011-14 compared with the original commitments in the National Development Plan;

calls on the Government to steer Ireland away from economic disaster by putting jobs, reform and industry growth at the centre of a new confidence-building economic strategy, in particular by:

- using the National Pension Reserve Fund and sales of non strategic state assets to accelerate the investments in water, high speed broadband and clean energy needed to improve competitiveness and stimulate the economy;
- cutting employers' PRSI rates for the low paid;
- scrapping the Travel Tax as part of a deal with the airline industry to expand services and tourist numbers;
- publishing a full audit of lending commitments by AIB and Bank of Ireland;
- providing partial loan guarantee for small and medium sized enterprises; and by
- publishing an action plan for implementing the recommendations of the National Competitiveness Council and the Competition Authority in order to improve Ireland's cost competitiveness."
