- education is a public good and should be treated as such;
- education and research have a vital role in addressing the most pressing environmental and social challenges in our society and must be supported to do so;
- opportunities to engage in teaching or research should be supported by the State in order to develop research and knowledge in the arts, humanities and social sciences as well as in science, engineering, mathematics and technology;

notes with concern that:

- in recent years over 11,200 lecturers have been employed by universities and higher education institutions on a temporary or casual basis;
- many staff are employed on fixed-term contracts leaving them in highly precarious financial situations;
- many contracts are often only offered for the duration of an academic year and staff are left with uncertainty as to whether they will be renewed;
- staff employed on Contracts of Indefinite Duration often lack a clear pathway for career progression and, depending on the exact contract, can also face regular periods of unemployment;
- individuals who are on such contracts may be required to seek alternative employment or utilise social welfare for the summer months;

- PhD and postdoctoral researchers are often paid hourly rates for teaching, often not taking into account the extensive preparatory work needed to teach;
- staff on hourly contracts are not entitled to maternity benefit, parental leave, sick leave or other employment rights and protections under employment legislation;
- PhD researchers are not recognised as employees and thus are not entitled to employment rights and protections under relevant legislation and furthermore are disadvantaged in respect of pensions as they do not make pay-related social insurance (PRSI) contributions;
- staff on such contracts are not within public sector pay agreements and thus do not receive the salary increases applied to other public sector workers;
- many staff spend a long number of years on such contracts and are not offered opportunities for career progression;
- due to the high levels of precarity within academia:
 - many staff are, or are considering, leaving the sector altogether;
 - our higher education institutions national and international reputations for excellence in teaching and research are being undermined;
 - students' education is being negatively affected;
 - academic freedom, critical thinking, innovation and the ability of researchers to engage in long-term or frontier research is being undermined;
- the low-pay experienced across the sector is intersecting with the cost-of-living crisis and the housing crisis, in particular, is impacting on lecturers, postdoctoral researchers and PhD researchers' ability to stay and work in Ireland;
- there is overreliance on private funding of research and public-private partnerships to fund and develop research;

notes:

- that the Employment Control Framework introduced by the Government has capped the number of permanent staff that higher education institutions can employ;
- the 2018 TASC Report entitled 'Living with Uncertainty: The Social implications of Precarious Work';
- the 2016 Report of the Expert Group on the Future Funding for Higher Education;
- the 2016 Report of the Expert Group on Fixed-Term and Part-Time Employment in Lecturing in Third-Level Education in Ireland; calls on the Government to:

- urgently engage with representative organisations of lecturers, postdoctoral and PhD researchers in order to begin to address this systemic issue;
- revise the Employment Control Framework in order to allow higher education institutions to offer permanent contracts to the large numbers of individuals on precarious contracts;
- engage with the Higher Education Authority, universities and higher education institutions, trade unions and other worker representative organisations to develop regulations around the use of fixed-term and part-time contracts and contracts of indefinite duration;
- introduce regulations or legislate to ensure that all persons employed to teach in higher education institutions earn a living wage at a minimum;
- in the medium-term, introduce regulations or legislate to end the widespread use of hourly contracts for teaching in universities and higher education institutions;
- recognise PhD researchers as employees so that they are entitled to relevant legislative employment rights and protections, including maternity benefit, parental leave and sick leave and PRSI contributions;
- work with relevant stakeholders to develop a tangible plan to end precarity in higher education;
- invest in public research and public-public partnerships for research, including frontier research.”

- notes that the student profile of those studying medicine and law in our universities continues to be dominated by those from more affluent socio-economic backgrounds;
- further notes that there are perceived and actual barriers to the medical and legal professions for those from less affluent socio-economic backgrounds;
- calls for an examination of the barriers to entry into the medical and legal professions to be undertaken by the Department for Further and Higher Education, Research, Innovation and Science, in conjunction with the Higher Education Authority and the relevant professional bodies, and that a report outlining suggested methods to ensure greater opportunities for access be presented before Seanad Éireann within six months.”

2. “That Seanad Éireann:

notes:

- that the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change Working Group III contribution to the Sixth Assessment Report (IPCC AR6 WG III) identified investment protection under the Energy Charter Treaty (ECT) through Investor-State Dispute Settlement (ISDS) mechanisms, which are ‘designed to protect the interests of investors in energy projects from national policies that could lead their assets to be stranded,’ as something which aids

- credit unions have limited scope to provide financial services to business customers e.g. personal current accounts only, and lack the expertise to fully serve this important sector; credit unions are not banks and do not want to be banks;
- the lack of availability of, and appetite for, credit by our SMEs, is constraining the growth of our economy as these are the backbone of the economy and provide the vast majority of employment;

acknowledges that:

- the Banking Review has commenced and is due to report by end of November 2022;
- separately, the review of the credit union movement is due to be completed imminently, members of the Government openly talk of the credit unions filling the gap left by Ulster Bank and KBC thus pre-empting the conclusions of this review along with the Banking Review;

and calls on the Government to:

- take immediate action, using the expertise available to it, to design and implement a comprehensive public bank system that makes full use of the remaining local financial services infrastructure to deliver a banking service that serves our local communities and businesses.”

acknowledges:

- the historic 30th anniversary of the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences) Act 1993, signed into law on 7th July, 1993, that decriminalised male homosexuality and introduced an equal age of consent;
- the 40th anniversary of both the ‘March from Liberty Hall to Fairview Park’ and the 40th anniversary of the Dublin LGBTQ Pride parade in June 1983;
- the 50th anniversary of the Sexual Liberation Movement, established in Trinity College in October 1973;

further acknowledges:

- the Dáil and Seanad motion of apology in 2018 to those convicted under the laws repealed in the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences) Act 1993;
- the Programme for Government commitment to ‘introduce a scheme for the expunging of criminal records for gay men convicted of historical offences’;

commends:

- the pioneering role of the Gay Liberation Society, established in Belfast in 1972;
- the advocacy of such foundational groups as the Northern Irish Gay Rights Association, the Irish Gay Rights Movement, National Gay Federation, Gay and Lesbian Equality Network, Liberation for Irish Lesbians, Cork Gay Collective, Dublin Lesbian and Gay Men's Collective and Galway Gay Collective, in advancing necessary public discourse on equality and anti-discrimination legislation;
- the bravery and steadfastness of those who pursued criminal and constitutional reform across the island of Ireland;
- the solidarity of the International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association and its individual member organisations in their decades-long advocacy of legislative reform in Ireland;

recognises:

- there is a global movement towards decriminalising homosexuality as the number of countries that criminalise consensual same-sex acts has decreased from 113 in 1990 to 64 in 2023;
- the bravery and steadfastness of LGBTIQ activists and organisations that continue to demand human rights protections and campaign for the decriminalisation of homosexuality and transgender identity, despite threats to their safety and lives;
